

Seven Reasons Out of the Box Events Benefits and adds Value to Your Organization

1. Our scavenger hunts are an activity that engages everyone involved. Individuals step out of their box to interact with different departments and team members
2. Teams of 4 to 6 people must collaborate and communicate effectively to solve the clues. We keep the teams small so that everyone has an equal voice and can contribute to the group's decision-making process regardless of their position within the company.
3. Our team building scavenger hunts blend the talents, skills, creativity and resources of each individual for the benefit of the team. This is the same principle that each individual works to benefit the whole company or organization.
4. One person may excel at word games while another has a great sense of direction. Another team member may take pride keeping the group moving on schedule and often new team leaders are discovered that may not yet be leaders within organization.
5. Our scavenger hunts stress unity, trust and positive moral which are beneficial to the workplace
6. Everyone has a common experience to share and relate to going forward. These conversations and relationships do not end at the end of the hunt, but open the door for further communication.
7. We have had nothing but positive results from our hunts. Our clients have said new friendships have resulted from hunts, relationships have improved, colleagues have a better understanding about how their team members problem solve and communicate, and that their outcome from the hunt has provided a memorable experience that employees still talk about.
